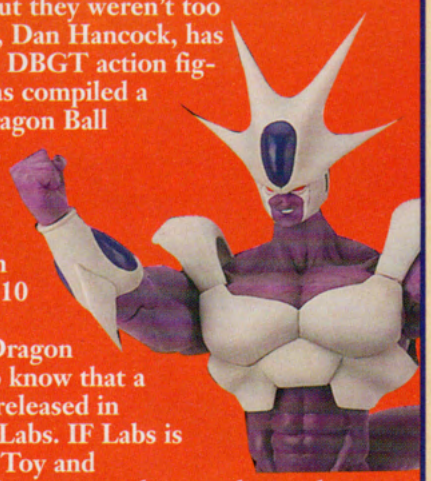
The Most Sought After Dragon Ball Toys

Since 1984, when Dragon Ball was first released, several Japanese toy companies have jumped on the bandwagon to produce action figures and accessories for the hit anime show. However, the most popular toy releases have come from more recent companies such as Bandai and Irwin. Many others tried, but they weren't too successful. Our Dragon Ball toy expert, Dan Hancock, has probably seen every rare DB, DBZ and DBGT action figure ever made. Inside this issue Dan has compiled a Top 10 list of the most sought after Dragon Ball toys. You may recognize a few of them, but most of them are extremely difficult to find. And his number one selection is so rare it's only been pictured once before in a Japanese Dragon Ball book! To view this incredible Top 10 list turn to page 4.



DBZ fans that love to collect Dragon Ball action figures will also be happy to know that a brand new line of DBZ figures will be released in January 2002. The new line is from IF Labs. IF Labs is a new company made up of both Irwin Toy and FUNimation. When these two companies get together you know that something amazing will happen. And it did! These new figures will contain super high quality sculpting and incredible points of articulation. For a sneak peek at these cool new toys turn to page 22.

If you're a fan or collector of Japanese Dragon Ball cards, we've got you covered too! From pages 8 to 11 we're featuring the entire series two of the Super Battle cards from Bandai. These cards were actually released 12 years ago and are now a treasure to find, if you're lucky. This set contains many great screen shots from the original Dragon Ball TV show. Check out all the fast moves on Tien's card. It's awesome!

We've recently received many requests from our readers to include special magazine features on Dragon Ball video games. Well, you got your wish! Inside this issue Dragon Ball expert, Greg Werner, has done a game review and summary for one of the hottest DBZ games of all time—Dragon Ball Z Hyper Dimension. This was one of Nintendo's hottest video games in Japan. Now you can read what the fuss was all about on page 28.

Do you like to enter contests to win cool prizes? Oh yeah, we've got them too! This issue includes three sweet DBZ contests. On page 3 you have a chance to win an unopened box of the hot new Cell Saga CCG cards from Score! Then on page 14 you have a chance to win the best new video game system from Nintendo—The GameCube! And finally, on page 32, you can enter for a chance to win a complete set of Irwin Toy Series 5 Dragon Ball Z action figures. Those are some pretty awesome prizes. Don't forget to send in your entry forms right away. You could be a winner!

Peace!

Dragon Ball Z Treasure Hunt:

The 10 Most Sought-After Dragon Ball Toys Worldwide!

By Dan Hancock

Since its creation in the mid-1980's, Dragon Ball has spawned multitudes of toys across nearly every continent. Many of these are now nearly impossible to find, and have become like relics in the toy collecting world, which only a few lucky and resourceful collectors will ever be able to obtain.

The main criterion for this list is a combination of how hard an item is to get and how many people are willing to go the lengths to get it. This is why some easier-to-find figures that nearly everyone wants, such as the new Irwin figures or SBC Trunks, are on the list, and why some super-rare figures that not as many people want, such as AB's 16-inch Janemba, are not.

And now-the 10

This was most evident with Series 2, which most people had some degree of trouble finding. In Series 2, Chiaotzu was originally short-packed (meaning there was only one per case), making it rare from the start. Burter, on the other hand, was the only figure in this series to fly off the shelves, because of its extremely high quality and likeness to the anime. Thus, even though Irwin shipped many more, Burter is both more expensive and more rare than Chiaotzu on the secondary market.

9. Bandai Super Battle Collection Vol. 5 Trunks

This version of Trunks is not [illegible]hat hard to [illegible], nor is it [illegible]icularly [illegible]ensive (gen[illegible]ly selling for [illegible]-20 online); [illegible]ever, it is [illegible] single fig[illegible] that nearly [illegible]ryone who [illegible]ects Dragon [illegible] toys will [illegible]. Even [illegible]ugh Irwin [illegible]ased a ver[illegible] of Future

Trunks in North America, the Japanese version is still much more sought after, because it is, in a word, superior. The combination of the most popular character from Dragon Ball Z along with a nearly flawless action figure makes this the one piece that no DBZ collector can pass up.

8. AB Model Kits: Tapion, Minoshia, and Vegetto

In the mid-90's, AB Toys released a series of model kits that were near-replicas of the Bandai Full Action Pose series in construction, but with many characters unreleased by Bandai (this same construction method is the one Irwin currently uses for its model kits). A few of the AB-unique characters are Tapion and Minoshia from Movie 13, and Vegetto. Each of these kits is extremely rare, and is especially hard to find boxed and unassembled.

7. Bandai Battle Z Collections

Each of the two Battle Z Collection sets includes five figure models, which stand between 2.5 and 4.5 inches tall when completed. Each finished figure has 5-7 points of articulation (including knee-joints on all the figures but Gohan and Krillin), and is extremely posable. The first set includes Goku, Gohan, Vegeta, Piccolo, and Trunks; the second set includes SS Goku, SS Vegeta, SS Trunks, Krillin, and Android 16. Each figure comes molded primarily in one color, and though the sets come with decals, painting these figures is really a must. As with all models, these are especially hard to find boxed and unassembled.

6. Bandai Super Battle Collection Movie 7 3-pack

The Movie 7 3-pack, which features exclusive gold-haired versions of Super Saiyan Goku, Vegeta and Trunks from the Super Battle Collection, was a Toei Animation Festival limited edition release. The Goku and Vegeta are simply repaints of SBC Vol. 2 and 7, but the Trunks figure features a unique hair sculpt on the Vol. 5 body. Until Irwin released its SS Blasting Trunks figure in 2000, this was the only figure of Super Saiyan Trunks with his sword and Capsule Corp. jacket, which is the main reason for this set's popularity with die-hard fans and new converts alike.

This set, which has gone for over $600 on eBay, used to be the hottest Dragon Ball item around; however, its popularity has waned in the last year, due to more becoming available- this piece is not in short supply for someone who is willing to pay the big bucks for it.

5. Bandai Full Action Pose Son Gohan

The Full Action Pose series is a set of three figures (plus one variant, more on that later) that Bandai released in the early 1990's.

Each figure is super-articulated, much like the wooden figures used by artists. For nearly every joint on a real human body, there is a joint on these figures. Additionally, these figures come with cloth outfits. Of the three regular figures in this set, Super Saiyan Goku, Super Saiyan Gohan, and Super Saiyan Trunks, the Gohan figure, while not the best in the series, is the hardest to find. These generally go for $100-200 on the secondary market.

4. Bandai Super Battle Collection Vol. 10 Broly ('92 box)

Each of the first ten Super Battle Collection figures was issued in a special box in 1992-the boxes were slightly more elaborate, and had a more individualized theme about them (for example, Vegeta's box was blue, Piccolo's was green, etc.). Some of these '92 packages are easy to find; however, the Vol. 10 Broly is extremely rare. For in-box collectors, this piece is an excellent quest item, because it's tough to find, but not too horribly expensive.

3. AB Majin Boo/Hildegarn 2-pack

Skinny Majin Boo and Hildegarn (the monster from DBZ movie 13) are the two hardest-to-find figures in the European Super Guerriers Articulé line of action figures; therefore, a two-pack containing both of these rare figures is a treasure. This is another piece that is not all that expensive ($30-50), but is great for in-box and out-of-box collectors alike, due to the scarcity of the individual figures themselves.

2. Bandai Super Collection Gohan and Krillin

Bandai's Super Collection, not to be confused with the Super Battle Collection, is probably the all-around most sought-after Dragon Ball toy series. Each figure is approximately 5-6 inches tall, made of soft vinyl, and comes in a diorama-style flaming-background box. Each one of these figures easily commands between $50 and $200 on auction sites. Arguably, the rarest of the set is Vol. 4, Son Gohan and Klilyn (one of the more creative romanized-Japanese ways of spelling 'Krillin'). Before Irwin, this was just about the only "bald" Krillin figure on the market, which singled it out amongst collectors as a must-have figure. Other rare figures in the set are Vol. 7 Trunks and Vol. 9 SS Gohan.

1. Bandai Full Action Pose Super Saiyan Goku, Yardrat Outfit Variant

This figure is absolutely the rarest legitimate (as in licensed) Dragon Ball figure in existence. Only 300 of these figures were ever sold, and they were only available at the Toei Animation Festival in 1992. This figure, a variant of the Super Saiyan Goku Full Action Pose figure, uses the same body, but comes with a Yardrat outfit (the outfit Goku has on when he returns from space in the Trunks Saga). In essence, this is the holy grail of Dragon Ball figures. In fact, the only proof of this figure's existence is in Dragon Ball Daizenshuu #6 (one of a series of official Toei animation Dragon Ball encyclopedias), where it is described as "extremely rare". If you ever see this figure for sale, and you can afford it without selling everything else you own, this is the one to get.

That's it-the top 10. Thanks to Tracy Segar for supplying some of the images (visit his website at http://www.fullrage.homestead.com). For more information on the toys listed above, and other Dragon Ball action figures, check out http://www.Dragon Balltoys.com. ★

GOING GOOGLE-EYED OVER DBZ ON THE WEB!

Dragon Ball fans have been using the Internet to communicate with each other, and to dig out scoops on the latest TV episodes, movie releases, cards, and other merchandise. It's fun to learn about new and different web sites, and by using a few simple tools, anybody can find lots of them easily. Most search engines make finding Dragon Ball information simple, but there are a few tricks that can harness the power of the net to do amazing things!

By now, almost everybody has used a search engine to find things on the Internet. Without search engines, it would be all too easy to get lost among the hundreds of millions of web pages out there. Google (http://www.google.com) has fast become one of the most popular search engines, and with good reason. Google's listings are based on their popularity. The more links a site gets from other web pages, the higher up it will show in search results. The engine also tries to eliminate most duplicate listings for you.

When I typed the word dragonball into Google, I was told there were about 524,000 different web pages available. You'll notice I didn't capitalize the word. That way the search engine will look for the word either capitalized or not. Typing dragonball toys into Google lowered the results to 61,800. On other search engines, adding the "toys" will increase the results, because most of them will look for pages with either word. Google will only look for pages with both words. Still, glancing through 61,800 web pages might take a long time! Here's an interesting trick: By putting both search terms in quotation marks - "dragonball toys" - Google returned only 3,120 pages! That's because it will only look for pages where the two words are together!

Finally, just for fun, if you type in the badly spelled word dargonball, Google brings up 437 sites where the authors proudly display their carelessness!

Another nifty feature of Google is its ability to search for pictures. Simply click on the tab that says "Images" and type in your search term. Using this feature brought up some fascinating pages. Here are a few I found:

* Dragonball Z Screen Savers

(http://members.tripodnet.nl/dragonballz4u/screensavers.htm)

This is strictly for Windows users, but it is free and pretty cool! The page is not in English, but the download links are pretty obvious.

* DBZ Wallpapers

(http://www.angelfire.com/anime/dbzexplosion/wp.html) Here is one of the best collections of Dragonball Windows Wallpapers I've ever seen. It's all free for the download, and Mac users don't need to feel left out - the Wallpaper graphics work fine as Mac Desktop Pictures as well! This page is part of the DBZ Explosion web site. To get there, just delete everything in the above URL after the last slash and press Return. It's well worth the visit.

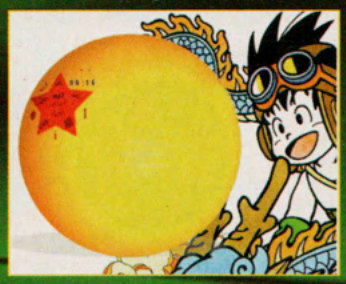
* The Audion mp3 Player Dragonball Face - Picture alone:

(http://www.panic.com/audion/gallery/previews/dragonball.jpg). Mac users can download a great customizable mp3 player for their machines and add a great Dragonball theme to it here: (http://www.panic.com/audion/faces.php?name=dragonball&author=&down=)



* Tamarket Anime Posters

(http://www.tamarket.com.au/posters/posterlist.htm) Here's a terrific site from Melbourne, Australia featuring a great collection of DBZ Posters. Yes, they do ship to the U.S., but have very specific ordering instructions. Still, if you click on the Posters and Pre-Order buttons, you'll be presented with a fantastic graphic full of exciting thumbnail pictures!

* Planning on a Dragonball party soon?

Don't miss Theme Parties in a Box (http://www.1800partyshop.com/ThemePages/dragonballz.html) Here you can preview and order everything you need for a great DBZ party!

* Maybe you'd like some candy to serve at your party?

Try Candy Planet (http://www.candy-planet.com/DragonBall_Z) for a listing of Dragonball candies and locations to buy them!

* Then you'll probably want a Dragonball topping for your cake.

The Sugarcraft web site (http://www.sugarcraft.com/catalog/novelties/novelties2.htm#drag) offers Dragonball Z edible images for cakes, as well as Dragonball Z cupcake toothpicks.

* While you're at it, if you have a spare four thousand dollars lying around, you can buy your very own DBZ Jumper!

(http://www.abcjumps.com/PriceList.htm) No doubt you've hopped around in a moonwalk ride at a carnival before. This site is the source of unique Dragon Ball themed inflatable bouncers - the ultimate toy for the ultimate fan!

This list hasn't even scratched the surface of all the great Dragon Ball stuff that can be found with a little help from a search engine. Pop online and see for yourself! ★

The Dragon Ball Game Room

Bringing you the world of DB Gaming!

By Greg Werner

Reviewed This Month: Dragon Ball Z Hyper Dimension

System: Super Famicom
Release Date: March 29th 1996

First things first, note the release date; this game was released almost six years ago! Some of you might be wondering if a game this "ancient" is worth your time. Keep this in mind, Chrono Trigger, arguably one of the most beautiful, intricate and original RPGs of all time, was released almost a year before this game. And let's not forget who penned the basic artwork and character design for both of these games, Mr. Akira Toriyama. In the same way, Hyper Dimension is one of the most beautiful fighting games for the Super Famicom, known as the Super Nintendo in the US. Although not terribly original, or too intricate, this is perhaps one of the best DBZ fighting games available for Super Famicom and, I dare say, one of the best of all, here's why.

Graphics: Gorgeous 2-D animated sprites dance across each battle arena; each with excellent animation. Frieza flips around during jumps, Vegeta crouches and waits in his classic Majin stance, while bolts of energy shoot around Goku's Super Saiyan 2 form. Each stage background is created from a huge palette and truly compliment the characters. Then there's the Mode 7 flying stages. My favorite is the flying evening scene in front of Kami's Palace. There's not much to say about the graphics other than they are really phenomenal and some of the best ever seen on a Super Famicom fighting game.

Sound: DBZ video games are not exactly known for having great tunes, but Hyper Dimension isn't too shabby. You will never find yourself humming a battle tune, or the story tunes, but you won't have to turn the volume down. The vocals in the game are fabulous and naturally all voices are done by the real voice actors. The amount of speech in the game isn't overwhelming, but it's adequate; usually short phrases here and there. For instance, when Cell wins a fight, he'll hover in the air shaking his head saying, "Boring...". Overall, the sound is average when compared to the incredible graphic quality.

Innovation: DB games are not known for being original. A few original DB RPG titles came out, but these formulas were copied in many of the following games. The Super Famicom DBZ fighting games are also close copies of one another (Super Butoden 1-3).

But Hyper Dimension breaks the mold in several aspects. First is the ability to do smash moves that send your opponent flying across the landscape into an entirely new arena. Theoretically, it is possible to go from a wrecked city, to the sky, to Kami's Palace, and down into a vacant wasteland, all in one fight. Also added was the ability to dodge into the background 3D-style, not to mention 3D-style "Ki Battles" in the mid-air stages. Also, Desperation Moves were added to the usual line-up of special moves. These are incredibly powerful attacks that can only be pulled off when your ki/life-meter is flashing red, (which means it is very low). While some of these moves are just a round of vicious attacks, others are absurdly cool! Goku for instance uses Instantaneous Movement to get next to his opponent, and then beats them up with a fierce round of punches and kicks. After this, he powers up to Super Saiyan 3 and gives his unlucky opponent a flying uppercut, but wait; it's not done yet! Then he changes into normal Goku and creates a Spirit Bomb that he drops on his opponent, then turns Super Saiyan 2 and explodes the bomb. Ouch.

Gameplay: The controls here are almost never a source of frustration. The sky levels are annoying and you'll find yourself dreading Goku's aerial fight against Mr. Buu in story mode. Other than that, the Super Moves and Desperation Moves are all a cinch to pull off. As I said earlier, the characters animate well, but they also control very well, which is one of the most important factors in fighting games. Once you can pull off Specials 100% of the time, you'll find the game to be a good challenge, not too hard not too easy. But be warned, some of the later levels will be very difficult if you can't pull off Supers well. They're a great asset, even though they drain your ki/life-meter a bit.

Overall: This game is a great deal of fun! You get a lot of the best characters from the series at your fingertips, like Gotenks, teen Gohan, Frieza, Vegetto, Kid Buu, Cell, Vegeta, and so on. There are no hidden characters, but if you beat the game on hard without losing a match, you'll get a "good" ending. (It's not THAT great trust me) The hardest part about this game is finding it! I recommend trying EBay or your local China Towns, Japan Towns, Korea Towns, etc. Asian game stores sometimes carry these rare games from the past, but beware of the hefty price tag. I purchased my copy for just under ninety dollars and that was before Dragon Ball Z was popular here! The cheapest route is to play the emulated version that can be obtained via the Internet. Good luck!!

Scoring: (1 to 10, 10 being the best)

Graphics: 10
It is hard to imagine a Super Famicom game as packed with info, as this cart is to boast better graphics; in fact, I wonder if it's even possible. Even Street Fighter Alpha for SNES suffered in some areas from the graphics. The graphics deserve a 10 simply for being as grand as possible, without detracting from any other aspect of the game.

Sound: 7
Not good, not bad, but definitely not annoying!

Innovation: 8
This is a DBZ fighting game on a 16-bit system; don't expect combos, parries or finishing moves, (of a truly violent nature at least). Just the fact that it has a 3D-ish dodge is cool, and was a glimpse into what is common nowadays.

Gameplay: 9
Aside from the awful aerial battles, characters are easy to use and move around, plus they're all well balanced, (larger characters don't jump as high and are slower than smaller faster characters).

Overall: 8.5
There's not much in this game that leaves to be desired. It's a great game! The Story Mode is cool as a retelling of the series from the Frieza saga, and the Tournament Mode will keep you and your friends busy for a while. There's nothing hidden in the game, (that's worth seeing), but it's stand-alone good enough.

Final Score: 8.5 (4

The Good, The Bad & the

What would Dragon Ball Z be without its line-up of intense characters? The series' backbone lies within each character's individual personas, not to mention their personal strengths and weaknesses. Each character has a distinct personality, and after watching the show for a while, you'll come to know the character, as you would a close friend... or perhaps an enemy. Which is why, in this section, we will tell you a little bit about each character so you can get to know them even better than you already do.

Bulma Briefs

How could we have let the Z Files go on this long without covering one of the most brilliant, beautiful and stylish characters in the series, Bulma Briefs! Born in 733 AD to the genius Dr. Briefs and "Mama", Bulma received the best genes from her parents. She was a turquoise-haired beauty with brains that appear to match if not surpass her father. Bulma becomes entangled in the entire Dragon Ball storyline when she goes looking for Dragon Balls during her summer vacation. Originally she found the Two-Star Dragon Ball in her basement, and after researching the artifact, found out what it was capable of accomplishing when all seven of them were joined together. At first Bulma thought a field of strawberries would be a great wish, but she changed her mind and wanted to have the perfect boyfriend. It was when she was on her way towards the Four-Star Dragon Ball in the Paozu Mountains that she came across a little boy, and her life would be changed forever...

Bulma also just happens to be the wife of Vegeta. Although a heavily disputed topic amongst American fans, Vegeta specifically refers to Bulma as his wife during a scene in the manga and anime. Although their wedding was never seen, a fan did a lovely rendition of it that has been circling around the Internet for years. "Why would Bulma marry him?" might be your question. Well the series specifically states that Bulma felt sorry for him because he seemed so alone. While this is true, don't forget how similar their personalities essentially are! There's Vegeta, the mighty prince of Saiyans with a seemingly infinite pride. Then there's Bulma, the strong-willed and sometimes stubborn daughter of one of the richest people in the Dragon Ball world! These two are a perfect match, and it is truly a shame we don't get to see more than a glimpse of some of their post-marital bouts! (I'm placing my money on Bulma!!)

Unearthing the Data of Dragon Ball Z Characters

Number 16

This big friendly giant is a powerhouse in sheep's clothing. In his grand unveiling, Artificial Human 16 appeared to be a great threat, but this idea was squelched when he was seen avoiding battles and letting songbirds perch on him. However, this was reverse psychology! He really WAS a force to be dealt with, (he just needed the right "persuasion").

Designed by Dr. Gero for the purpose of killing Goku, Artificial Human 16 was deemed a failure by his creator because of his lack of lust for bloodshed. While Number 16 would gladly accomplish his primary objective, to destroy Goku, he loved nature and wished only to preserve it. For this reason, Dr. Gero marked him a failure, which is perhaps the reason why Dr Gero decided to use punkish humans as the bases for 17 and 18. Number 16 is entirely mechanical, and like all of the Android series, does not and cannot posses ki. He does not hover on ki in the same way as Goku and the rest of the Z Soldiers; instead he uses energy, and hovers by "Flight".

The bomb placed within Number 16 by Dr. Gero is supposedly strong enough to kill something as strong as Perfect Cell. Although he tried to use this as a last resort attack against the beast in the Cell Game, Bulma had already removed the bomb while she was repairing him from his bout with 2nd Stage Cell.

Unlike Number 17 and 18, Number 16 can detect ki sources. This is not to say he can sense ki, as that is impossible for him. However, Gero designed a program that allows him to pinpoint ki. Number 17 and 18 use this to their advantage when searching for Goku. In the end, Number 16 allows himself to be completely destroyed by Perfect Cell in order to give a very important message to Gohan, and it is this act that saves humanity, by forcing Gohan over the edge and to the Super Saiyan 2 state.

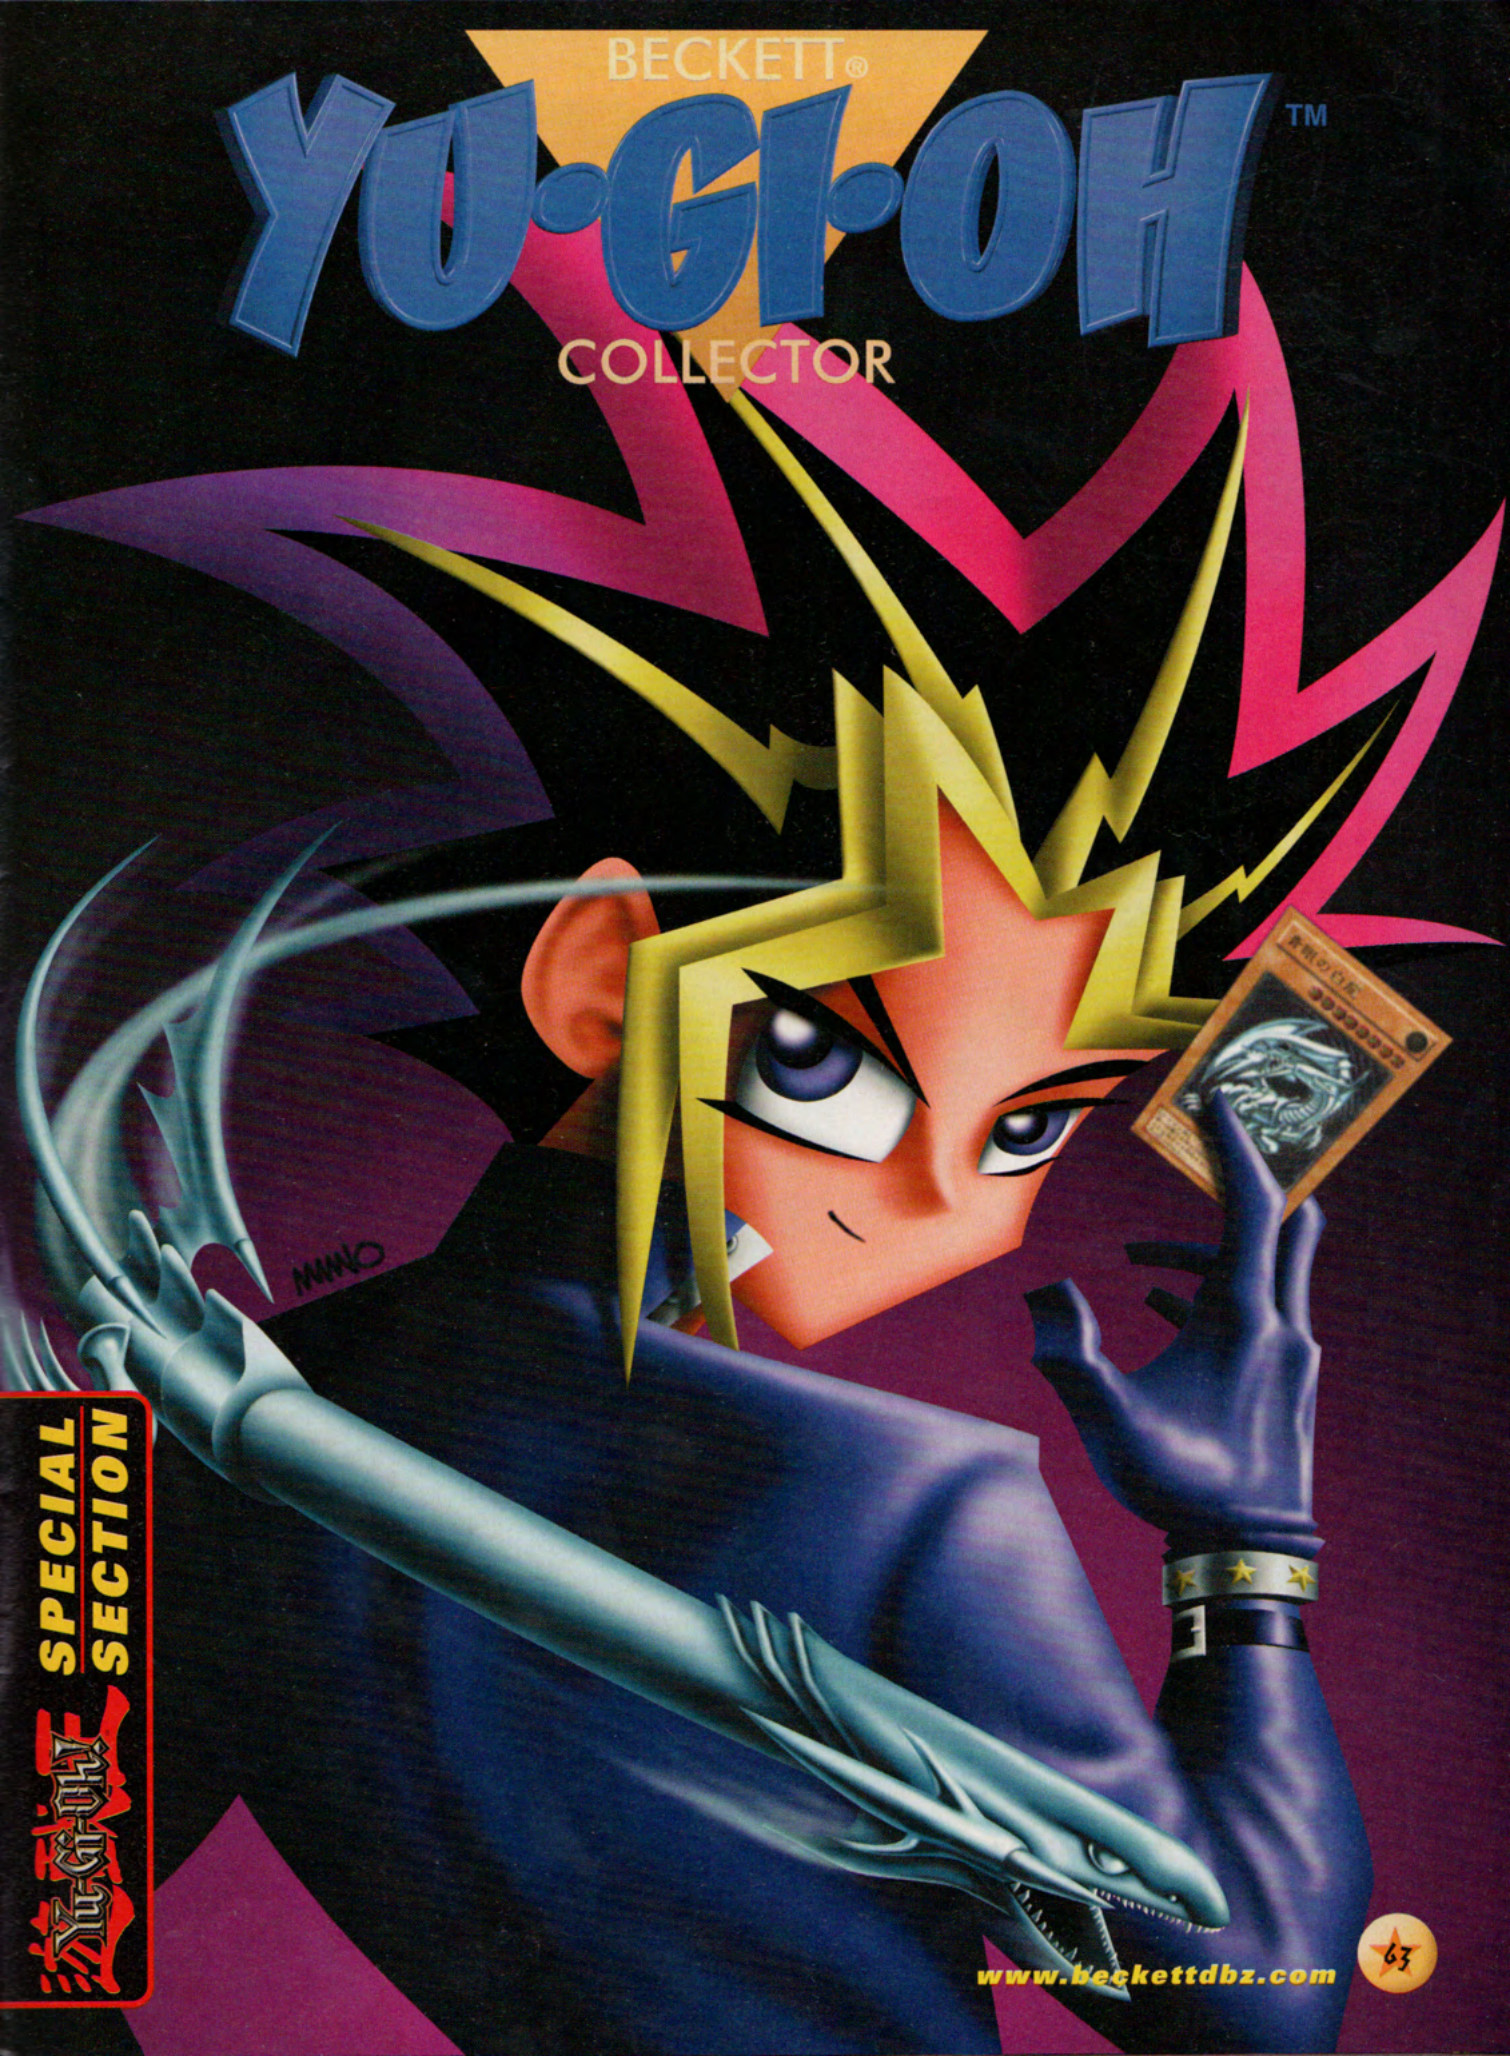
YU-GI-OH™

COLLECTOR



SPECIAL SECTION

By Peter Chi Chung Cho

Yu-Gi-Oh!: The Game

A guide to the card types and rules for playing the Yu-Gi-Oh trading card game.

Monster Cards

I. Monsters (General)

Summoning Monsters

You can summon one Normal Monster per turn during your Main Phase.

(*Note: This does not include Fusion, Ritual, and other Special Monster Summons.)

When summoning a (Normal) Monster, its Level must be taken note of. A Level 1-4 Monster can be played onto the Field straight-away, but Monsters Level 5 & above require the player to sacrifice a number of Monsters in order to summon it into play.

Level 5-6 Monsters:

- Sacrifice 1 Monster in play in order to summon a Level 5-6 Monster onto the Field.

Level 7 & above:

-Sacrifice 2 Monsters in play in order to summon a Level 7-&-above Monster onto the Field.

Whenever you summon a new Monster onto the Field, you'll have to determine the position (or 'mode') it'll assume when it is put onto the Field. The Monster can either assume: Attack Mode or Reverse Defense Mode. Once you have chosen the Monster's mode, it cannot be changed until your next turn. When you change a Monster's position from Reverse (card face down) to Attack (card face up), this action is known as a "Reverse Summon".

Monster Positions

Attack Mode

The Monster Card is placed faced-up vertically. You're able to attack during the Battle Phase.

Defense Mode

The Monster Card is placed faced-up horizontally. You're unable to attack during the Battle Phase.

Reverse Defense Mode

The Monster Card is placed faced-down horizontally. This position is only available when a Monster first comes into play.

Monster cannot be affected by Magic (Equipment) Cards (i.e. Magic/Traps that requires the card stats to be seen). You're unable to attack during the Battle Phase. When attacked by another Monster, the Monster Card will be turned face-up (thereby assuming 'Defense Mode') so that the opponent can view its stats. When affected by certain Magic (e.g. "Sealing Swords of Light"), the Monster Card will be turned face-up, thereby assuming 'Defense Mode'. Under normal circumstances, the player is not allowed to change the card's position from Reverse Defense to Defense.

Changing Modes/Positions

You are allowed to change the positions of your Monsters once per turn during your Main Phase. You can change a Monster's position from Defense/Reverse Defense Mode to Attack Mode. You can also do an Attack Mode to Defense Mode.

However, you cannot normally change a Monster's position from Reverse Defense to Defense Mode. *This only occurs when a Monster assuming Reverse Defense gets attacked or affected by Magic; see section above.

Note: A 'Reverse Attack Mode' exists, but it is not available under normal circumstances, and therefore not covered.

II. Special Monster Summons

Fusion Monsters

Fusion Monster Cards are purple in color and they require the combination of 2 (or more) Monster Cards, together with the use of the Magic "Fusion" Card (Starter, V6), in order to be brought into play.

When playing with Fusion Monsters, the Fusion Monster Cards are not part of your Deck. Fusion Monster Cards are placed faced-down in the Fusion Deck slot on the Field.

Your Fusion Deck is not the same as your regular draw Deck. Once you have the "Fusion" Magic Card together with the required component Monster Cards, you are ready to summon the Fusion Monster. Play the "Fusion" Card and send the component Monsters to the Graveyard.

The component Monsters can either be in your Hand or on the Field. Search your Fusion Deck for the specific Monster and put it onto the Field. Unlike Normal Monster summons, the Fusion Monster can only assume Attack or Defense Mode (but NOT Reverse Defense) but it first comes into play.

Rulings:

Fusion Monsters cannot be the target of "Drop Hole"," Rising Horn", and "God's Declaration". When a Fusion Monster is destroyed, send it to your Graveyard. It can now be the target of the "Resurrect" spell if you wish to. When a Fusion Monster is required to be sent back to your Hand by certain Magic/Effects (e.g. Hane-Hane), place the Fusion Monster back into your Fusion Deck.

Ritual (Ceremony) Monsters

Ritual Monster Cards are blue in color and require an accompanying Ritual Magic Card in order for it to be summoned into play. A Ritual Monster requires the player to sacrifice a number of Monsters to summon it onto the Field.

When playing with Ritual Monsters, both the Ritual Monster and its accompanying Ritual Card are included in your Deck. Once you have both the Ritual Monster and its Ritual Card in your Hand, you are ready to summon it. Play the Ritual Card and sacrifice the required number of Monsters whether they are in your Hand or on the Field, sending them to your Graveyard. You have to sacrifice a number of Monsters whose Levels add up to that of the Ritual Monster's Level. This is also written on the Ritual Card. Summon the Ritual Monster into play. Unlike Normal Monster summons, the Ritual Monster can only assume Attack or Defense Mode (but NOT Reverse Defense) but it first comes into play.

Rulings:

Rituals Monsters cannot be targeted of "Drop Hole"," Rising Horn", and "God's Declaration". You can only use "Resurrect" on a Ritual Monster Card in your Graveyard, which has been legally summoned onto the Field before it was destroyed.

(*Not one that you merely discarded.)

Effect Monsters

Effect Monster Cards are dark brown in color and possess special abilities, which are written where the flavor text normally would be. When an Effect Monster is summoned into play, its ability is immediately active and remains in play so long as the Monster card is faced-up. The ability of an Effect Monster is not active when it is faced-down (Reverse).

Reverse Effect Monsters

This is a special class of Effect Monsters whose abilities can only be activated when the Monster undergoes 'Reverse Summoning'. In order to activate the special ability of a Reverse Effect Monster, you must let the Monster assume Reverse Defense Mode when you first summon it into play. During your next turn, change the Monster's mode from Reverse Defense to Attack Mode. This is 'Reverse Summoning'. The Monster's special ability is now successfully activated. If you let the Monster assume Attack Mode right from the start, its special ability can never be activated.

Rulings:

When your opponent attacks your Reverse Monster (in Reverse Defense Mode), its special ability is also activated because it is turned face-up thereby assuming Defense Mode; see section above on "Monster Positions". When this happens, damage is resolved first, followed by the Reverse Monster's ability (even if the Monster is destroyed during battle).

Example:

Player A's "Summoned Skeleton" attacks Player B's "Man-eating Bug" (which is in Reverse Defense Mode).

Step 1 [Resolve the Damage]: The Man-eating Bug is destroyed.

Step 2 [Activate Special Ability]: Man-eating Bug's Special Ability is activated; destroys target Monster in play.

III. Resolving Combat

During the Battle Phase, each Monster in Attack Mode may attack only once. When a Monster attacks another Monster, the following scenarios may occur.

Attack Vs. Attack

When a Monster attacks an opposing Monster (also in Attack Mode), their Attack ratings are compared. The Monster with the lower Attack rating is defeated and sent to its owner's Graveyard. The difference between both Monsters' Attacks rating is the damage dealt to the losing Player.

Example:

Player A's "Blue Eyes White Dragon" (Attack 3000) Vs. Player B's "Dark Magician" (Attack 2500)
Result: Dark Magician is defeated and Player B receives 500 damage (3000 - 2500 = 500).

Attack Vs. Defense

When a Monster attacks an opposing Monster (in Defense Mode), the attacker's Attack rating is compared to the defender's Defense rating. If the attacker's Attack rating is greater than that of defender's Defense rating, the defender is defeated and sent to its owner's Graveyard. No damage is dealt to the losing Player this way.

Example:

Player A's "Dark Magician" (Attack 2500) Vs. Player B's "Gaia The Black Knight " (Defense 2100)

Result: Gaia The Dark Knight is defeated and sent to its owner's Graveyard. No changes occur in Player B's LP.

If the attacker's Attack rating is lower than that of defender's Defense rating, the attacking Player receives damage which is equal to the difference between both Monster's Attack/Defense rating. (Neither Monster is destroyed.)

Example:

Player A's "Flame Swordsman" (Attack 1800) Vs. Player B's "MYSTICAL Elf" (Defense 2000)

Results: Player A receives 200 damage (2000 - 1800 = 200). Neither Monster is affected.

If the attacker's Attack rating is the same as that of defender's Defense rating, nothing happens. Neither Player receives any damage and neither Monster is destroyed.

Example:

Player A's "Curse of Dragon" (Attack 2000) Vs. Player B's "MYSTICAL Elf" (Defense 2000)

Result: Nothing happens.

No Monsters in Play

If the opponent has NO Monsters in play, the player may attack him directly for Direct Damage. The damage dealt is equal to that of the Attacking Monster's Attack rating.

Example:

Player A has "Summoned Skeleton " in play, but Player B has NO Monsters left on the Field. "Summoned Skeleton" (Attack 2500) attacks Player B for Direct Damage.

Result: Player B loses 2500 LP.

Are You Ready To Rummmmmmble?

Wrestling card collectors get a shot at the Heavyweight Title!

By Joe White

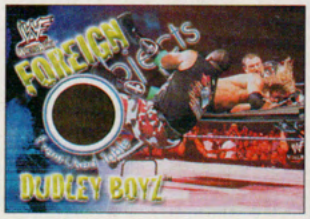
More cool wrestling memorabilia cards have been released from Fleer! Their first release included event-worn clothing and ring items. Now WWF fans have a chance to obtain exclusive Championship wrestling memorabilia. With the WWF market entering a new era, these new WWF Championship cards will fuel more collectors into the marketplace. This is the first time wrestling fans can own items never before offered to the public.

Early reports on the WWF Championship Clash cards indicate a huge hit with collectors. The set includes more event-used cards than ever before. You'll find memorabilia cards from WWF Championship matches with wrestlers such as The Rock and Stone Cold Steve Austin. Plus, the Divas Private Collection inserts features the first ever event-worn material cards of the hottest WWF Divas such as Lita's bikini top and t-shirt card. Also included are dress and scarf cards from other Divas such as Tori and Terri. Then Fleer went one step further by including another hot set called Divas Private Signing. These cards feature the first ever hand signed insert cards of Divas: Lita, Molly Holly, and everyone's favorite owner Stephanie McMahon Helmsley! For icing on the cake, 50 lucky WWF fans can feel like The Rock with 50 redemptions good for an actual full size championship belt!

Fleer continues to give WWF fans something to cheer about. The fans like what the card company has done and they want more! To answer the call, Fleer has made obtaining pieces of WWF history a little easier. Fans can now find an event-used item card or an autographed card one out of every eight packs! Those are terrific odds! And because of the new insert to pack ratio, unopened boxes have become a hot commodity.

DUDLEY BOYZ RULE!

WWF fans are still in search of the Dudley Boyz Foreign Objects piece of table insert card. Apparently, they're willing to shell out big bucks for this card in order to complete their sets. This card has sold for as much as $175. The Lip Service cards, which are always at the top of wrestling collectors' want lists, are also selling well and continue to be in high demand.



1998 TOPPS WCW/NWO

Before Fleer began releasing their WWF card sets, Topps was "the favorite" among wrestling collectors. The last wrestling set that Topps released was back in 1998. This 72-card set contained both male and female wrestlers from the WCW and the NWO leagues. Many big name favorites were included such as: Hollywood Hogan, Macho Man Savage, Goldberg, Bret Hart, Sting and a surprise appearance from Tonight Show host-Jay Leno! Plus, if you're a female wrestling fan you're in luck. This set also includes a 7-card subset called Nitro Girls that includes: Fyre, Chae, Kimberly, Spice, AC Jazz, Tygress and Whisper. This set is usually priced from as low as $6 to as high as $15. If you can find one at those prices it's still a bargain! ✷

How To Use & Condition Guide

What's Listed
Products listed in the Price Guide typically: (1) are produced by licensed major manufacturers, (2) are widely available, (3) have market activity on single cards and (4) focus on players active at the time of issue.

What the Columns Mean
The LO and HI columns reflect current retail selling ranges. The HI column generally represents full retail selling price. The LO column generally represents the lowest price one could expect to find with extensive shopping.

What the Arrows Mean
Up arrows denote prices that went up since last issue. Down arrows denote prices that went down since last issue. Arrows don't mean a card or set is "going up" or "going down."

Multipliers
Parallel sets and lightly traded insert sets are listed with multipliers to provide values of unlisted cards. Multiplier ranges (i.e. 20X to 40X HI) apply only to the HI column. Example: If base card A lists for 20 to 50 cents, and the multiplier is "20X to 40X HI," then the parallel version of card A or the insert card in question is valued at $10 to $20.

Regional Premiums
Since demand varies from region to region, card prices of your local players may be higher in your hometown. This is known as a regional premium.

Stated Odds and Print Runs
Odds of pulling inserts are listed as a ratio (1:12 = one in 12 packs). If the odds vary by pack type, they are listed separately. Stated odds are provided by the manufacturer based on the entire print run and should not be viewed as a guarantee by neither Beckett Publications nor the manufacturer.

Currency
This Price Guide reflects the North American market. All listed prices are in U.S. dollars. Based on the current exchange rate, prices in Canadian dollars are 35% to 50% higher.
